

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Thus, their decision to use airtime to show such a blatantly partisan piece right before an election appalls me. This seems to me to be exactly the sort of activity the FCC is supposed to prevent: individuals (or corporations) co-opting public airwaves for radical, certainly not in the public interest, purposes. Thank you.